Advice for seniors

by Blake Mirman

With seniors about to start their new lives, teachers had some helpful advice for them. Here are some of the words of wisdom that they had to offer:

Ms. Nelmark Math Teacher

“Don’t rush into a life of responsibility. Some experiences have expiration dates. You have your whole life to work.”

Mr. Schramm Physical Education teacher

“Each point in your life is different. At this stage when you are choosing a path, start off with a quick, solid beginning.

Make a good 1st impression on the people that can move you along quickly in school or career life.”

Mr. Smith Physics Teacher

“Beware of those who give you what you want. Seek out those who will give you what you need”

Ms. Shult Biology and Anatomy Teacher

“What’s in YOUR utility belt? The utility belt can be a tool to remember the important skills that lead to success or the people who lift you up and help you feel safe. In biology, I used it to help students visualize study skills, examples include but are not limited to taking notes, participating in class, getting help during flex. After high school, those skills and people may change. Be willing to change the ‘contents’ of the utility belt as you see fit. All the best to the Class of 2017!”

Mr. Murphy Math Teacher

“Travel. Take an opportunity to see the world.”

Mrs. Johnson AP Biology Teacher

“Take time to enjoy life. Meet as many people as possible. Learn to appreciate all of the little things. Make a positive difference in your little corner of the world.”
